Indian Railways is embarking on a massive up gradation and expansion of its infrastructure for higher speeds and increased axle loads. With increasing number of passenger and freight trains over the years, the maintenance corridors are no longer available or are inadequate in most of the sections, more so in busy sections where the requirement of maintenance is also more. Optimum utilization of the blocks, therefore, by optimizing the output of machines in the available maintenance slot is the need of the day to ensure safety and mobility in operations. At the same time quality assurance in maintenance and laying of track is of prime importance.

For capacity expansion, Railways are going in a big way for doubling, tripling and quadrupling.
